I spent the majority of my professional career in the nuclear industry (feed materials, plutonium and tritium production) working for AEC prime contractors. As the PC made its debut, we all had the opportunity to test the software developed by Microsoft. Did we like it? You had better believe it! The early word processing and data base programs were a delight. As we moved into retirement, the Microsoft software was even better and we are all in unanimous accord that we wish Microsoft had come to us sooner.

Don't stifle progress. Support Microsoft for what they have contributed to our society ; for what they have done for our kids and grandchildren and others' parents and grandparents.

It seems the major opponents to Microsoft's success are its competitors who can't compete with Microsofts' capability and ingenuity.
